FILLED THE HOUSE WITH GAS. Burglars Ransack Mrs. T. M. Hunter's

Home on California Street. While Mrs. T. M. Hunter, of 276 North California street, was at church last night, burglars broke open a shutter, raised the window and crawled into the house. After lighting the gas, they ransacked the premises. In addition to $25 in money, they carried off a lot of clothing and other articles. Half of the money belonged to the Ladies' Aid Society of the California-street M. E. Church. Mrs. Hunter is treasurer of the society. Before leaving, the house-breakers blew out the gas at one jet and left another burning. They may have hoped that the gas would explode, set the house on fire and destroy all evidence of their crime. When Mrs. Hunter returned the house was full of gas. After airing th house, she mady a hasty search and found that the money was gone. The police were notified and detective Wilson was detailed

He said he was a fugitive from justice and was wanted at Arcola, Ill., on the charge of forgery. McCormack said he had forged a note for $250, signing the name of Aaron Hood, cashier of the bank at that place. Superintendent Colbert telegraphed o Arcola concerning the case and last night received a message directing that the man be held until the marshal could come and Further Light Showing that the Buffalo Cattle Buyer Was a Victim of Circumstances.

Owing to the absence of Joseph Block, president of the Citizens' Bank of Buffalo from home, Solomon Block, the stock buyer in jail here, was unable to complete arrangements for a bond Saturday night. Yesterday he received a telegram from W. A. Reinhart, one of the directors of the bank, urging him to give himself no uneasiness about his bond, as Joseph Block had promised to furnish indemnity, but could not do so on Sunday. Block will probably be released to-day.

Yesterday it was learned that one of the firms who had accepted Block's checks sent a representative to Buffalo when the check was returned unpaid, and received positive proof that Block had been guilty of no wrong intentions. The firm's representative was informed by one of the directors of the bank that the cashier happened to be away from town the day Block's note became due. Up to that time the cashler had extended Block's credit upon a note given by his wife and secured by a mortgage for $6,800. Several things went wrong that day, and the president who was in control of credits during the cashier's absence, refused to renew the loan and applied the money deposited to Block's credit to the payment of the note, instead of to the protection of the checks. Upon learning the true state of facts the firm's claim was adjusted on a basis satisfactory to all parties and the man returned to Indianapolis. He reported the condition of affairs to other interested parties, and they were about to accept Block's proposition to give his notes, bearing his wife's indorsement, payable in installments of six, twelve, eighteen and twenty-four months, when their attorney advised them to make no

The pupils progress through the primary and intermediate grades, graduate from a preparatory school. attend college and take a post-graduate course and return home without the earning capacity of one dollar a week. The ordinary school methods, said Mr. Gibson, stupefy and render abstract, cold and inexplicable most of the great facts and symbols of the universe. A boy will learn more practical geometry, he asserted, during a week's experience in building a boat than he will learn in school in months. Such an experience will stick. The scholar must be taught to make absolute use of all that is

The speaker believed that boys and girls at the age of sixteen should have presented to them all of the practical producing things of life. He would suggest that after a boy has reached sixteen he should stay out of school for a year and spend the time in studying things practical. A youth with such an experience will make a better doctor, a better preacher and a better lawyer than the ordinary man. It makes his mind more active and more receptive. It is useless, the speaker said, to organize a manual training school and operate it on theoretical lines alone. Ohio, for instance, has a school for instructions in brick-making which has been patronized and encouraged by the National Brick Makers' Association. In 1876 the German government sent a commission to the Philadelphia exposition to make a report on the American manufacturers' ex-hibit. One member of the commission offended his country by sending back word that Germany was far behind this country in its manufacturing industries. Nevertheless, said Mr. Gibson, the German government took up the trade-school question and spent a great deal of money in getting these institutions established. As a result, in 1893, at Chicago, the man who studied the exhibits observed that Germany, through its trade-schools, had made rapid strides in the way of manufacturing and was far ahead of any other country. The effect of this on France and England has America with that of other countries such as France, Germany, England and Scotland. It is the plan, he said, of the French educa-Sunday. The officers notified him twice he was violating the law and informed him the violations must cease. Burkhart paid no attention to their instructions and was arrested as a consequence.

It is the plan, he said, of the French education in this country the said system to make the pupil productive as he leaves school. In this country the syoung man is sent through college without an idea of what he is to take up as a life work. Mr. Gibson gave another ilustration of the benefits of practical education in France. The speaker held that pupils may learn to cook in schools as they are taught to read. He said he found in England and Scotland cooking methods taugh: with arithmetic and spelling. In view of the fact that a large part of food is wasted in cooking and preparing it for table through a lack of practical knowledge. Mr. Gibson thought the American schools would do well to teach cooking. Our colleges, maintained Mr. Gibon, confine themselves too much to what "I have known of Latin scholars," he said, "graduated from the best universities, who were compelled to drive o motor-car or a cab because these were the only things of which they had practical knowledge. RESULT OF OFFICIAL RECOGNITION OF CITIZENS' STREET R. R. CO.

Means the Practical Abandonment by the Taggart Administration of the City's 1894 Contention.

The cause of the action of the city adtion with the Citizens' Street-railroad Company was the subject of a few remarks yesterday by an attorney who has closely watched the litigation arising out of the claims of the company for a perpetual charter. "The Denny administration," said he, "acted on the lines laid down by the attorney of the Sullivan administration. It was held that the company's charter expired in 1894, although it has been believed all the time that the chances of maintaining this point were not the best, but behind this there was a reason for taking the 12 Cord Curtains ... $2.78

| Stand that the charter did expire in 1894. It was known that the company would been brought in the meantime. As a feature of the proposed settlement the bank agreed to renew Block's credit, with the understanding that his wife should give another mortgage. It is said Block's wife owns real estate in Buffalo worth $25,000 or $30,000. As a result of their attorney's advice the firms concluded to push the inverse of the purpose of the pu vice, the firms concluded to push the in-dictments and urged Sheriff Womack to serve the caplases which the grand jury had placed in his hands. Communication was not interrupted, but all letters were approved by the city attorney before being sent out, so as to be sure that they in no way could be construed as a recognition of any rights of the company on the streets of the city. It was thought best to adopt this plan as long as the city presecuted its sult on the contention that the company's charter had already expired, and it was thought advisable to push this suit, so as to get a decision on the question of the perpetuity of the char-ter before the saven-year period elapsed. Recently the Board of Works, on the advice of City Attorney Curtis, has sent in-structions to the company in a shape that shows the city is making certain demands because of the terms of the company's contract. I can construe this in only one way—the present administration has decided to drop the prosecution of the contention that the company's franchise has expired. It may be that it has simply been decided that such communications, being of a public necessity, would not be held by the courts as a legal recognition of the rights of the company, but the fact that there has been no further step taken in the litigation since this administration came into power leads me to believe that the other reason is the correct one." Ex-City Attorney Scott was asked yes-terday what he thought of the action of the present administration. He said he would prefer that his action while city attorney be taken as his opinion, as to express himself on the subject now would be to place himself in the attitude of criticising the administration, which he did not care to do, for he did not think any action had been taken without due consideration of the points involved.

lived on a farm. Shortly before removing to Indianapolis Hutto sold his place. It was his intention to reside permanently in Indianapolis, providing he could find employ ment. Finding work scarce, he decided to resume farm life, and with this idea in mind purchased a farm near Castleton two weeks ago. He bought the farm of George B. Yandes, paying $1,000 down. A week ago last Saturday he went back to the old place in Tipton county, with the intention of driv-ing his team to this city. He returned last Monday night and said he had concluded not to drive the team down, as the weather was too disagreeable. The next day he made arrangements with Mr. Springer to build an addition to the house on the farm and went with him to purchase the lumber. It was not paid for. That night he refused to eat supper, saying he was ill. The next morning he still complained and ate no break-fast. Feeling considerably alarmed on ac-count of her husband's indisposition, Mrs. Hutto says she went into his rom between 8 and 9 o'clock and found that he was gone. Since then she has seen nothing of him. Messages were sent to his old home and one of her sons went to Castleton, but nothing had been seen of him at either place. Mr. and Mrs. Hutto were married a year and a half ago, both having children by former marriages. Hutto was an Odd Fellow. He is fifty years old. Dr. Gore, of Tipton, who has been his physician for a number of years, came here to investigate the case on behalf of Hutto's lodge. He said last night that he was confident that Hutto was suffering from dementia and had wandered away from home without knowing what he was about. When his first wife died seven years ago he was demented for a time. Mrs. Hutto said that she has been worried about her husband for weeks. Upon two occasions he told her that he had stood upon the street corner trying to decide whether it would not be best for him to throw himself in front of a car, saying she would be better off without him. She remonstrated with him for harboring such ideas. Dr. Gore said that Hutto was a man of good moral character, that he stood high in the lodge, and never drank liquor of any kind.

Mrs. Hutto said her husband must have had considerable money with him, probably $300 or $400, but as she had made no investigation at the bank she could not tell just how much he took away. Mrs. Springer was the last person to see Hutto.

SOME FIGURES PADDED

STATEMENT SHOWING SCHOOL FUNI BALANCES BY COUNTIES.

Marion County Suffers to the Extent of $31,223.69 by the System.

State Auditor Daily is completing his settlement with the counties of the school fund pays in only the amount of the State tax and retains all of the school fund tax it collects. After the apportionment of the fund is made by the State Superintendent, the State Auditor calls on the counties which have collected more than their apportioned share for the balance, and remits to the others the amounts due them. The warrants were being sent out by the Auditor Saturday. The statements of the amount paid out to the different counties in this way is interesting, from the fact that shows which counties have an excess of school children and a deficiency of taxable or assessed property. It also shows that undoubtedly some of the counties have "padded" their enumeration of school children. Without anything more tangible than the figures on file to guide in the belief, it is generally thought by those who have charge of this work that the returns of Harrison county are padded. The simple fact that other counties pay to it about 80 cents for each of its enumerated school children is not sufficient to justify this assumption, for there are other counties that receive, in proportion, as large sums.

Some of the greatest beneficiaries of the law that apportions the entire State school fund according to the number of children of school age, regardless of the amount of the tax paid by the separate counties, are: Clay county, $6,935.24; Harrison, $6,205.97; gates to the national convention. Perry, $5.547.83; Daviess, $5,403.42; Madison, $5,222.62; Crawford, $5,181.11; Dubois, $4,951.50; Spencer, $4,939.96; Allen, $4,840.71; Warrick, $4,157.54. Thirty-eight other counties receive sums ranging from almost $4,000 down to tem Marlon county is the heaviest sufferer. The total enumeration of children shows that there are about 27 per cent. more school children in the State than voters, but many counties show considerable more than 40, and Martin reaches about 65 per cent., while a few others have more than 50 period of seven years for which the extension was granted, and thus not have any delay by litigation after that period had passed. A Letter from an Armenian. A good audience gathered at the Seventh Presbyterian Church last evening to hear Mr. Scone Hovasapian, the Armenian student at the Central Medical College, speak concerning his people and their suffering at the hands of the Turks. Rev. G. L. Knox and the members of the church were highly pleased with the instructive talk which Mr. Hovasapian gave. He spoke of the religious views and ways of living of the Armenians as contrasted with the Turks, and he closed his talk by showing the audience a number of papers, letters and interesting things from his country. One letter which Mr. Hovasapian recently received from a She was standing on her step when he left the house last Wednesday.
